PART 2 - FLEXIBILITY

2.1 Enterprise flexibility

2.1.2 The consultative processes established in an enterprise in accordance with clause 2.1 may provide an appropriate mechanism for consideration of matters relevant to clause 2.1.1. Union delegates at the place of work may be involved in such discussions.

2.1.3 Any proposed genuine agreement reached between an employer and employee/s in an enterprise is contingent upon the agreement being submitted to the Commission in accordance with Chapter 6 of the Act and is to have no force or effect until approval is given.

PART 3 - COMMUNICATION, CONSULTATION AND DISPUTE RESOLUTION

3.1 Grievance and dispute settling procedure

3.1.1 Should a problem arise between an employer and employees which may result in an industrial dispute, the following steps shall be followed in a genuine attempt to resolve the matter without loss of time through industrial action.

3.1.2 When a problem arises concerning one or more employees, discussions are to be held between the employees concerned and the immediate supervisor in order to find a satisfactory resolution to the matter. The Union representative, where appropriate, should be called upon to assist in such discussion. Where the dispute concerns alleged actions of the immediate supervisor the employee/s may bypass this level in the procedure.

3.1.3 If the matter is unresolved at this level, the Engineer and/or Maintenance Supervisor should be made aware of the matter and discussions should be held with a view to resolving it. All parties including the Union representative, where appropriate, should take part in such discussions.

3.1.4 In the event that the problem is still unresolved arrangements will be made for discussions to be held involving management and the State Secretary or State Organiser of the Union concerned, where appropriate, together with all other concerned parties.

3.1.5 If the problem still remains unresolved after such discussions, either party may seek the assistance of the Industrial Commission.

3.1.6 In order to allow for the peaceful resolution of grievances the parties shall endeavour to avoid stoppages of work, lockouts or any other bans or limitations on the performance of work while the procedures of negotiation and conciliation are being followed.

- 3.1.7 Except in the case of termination of employment, the status quo existing before the emergence of the dispute or grievance is to continue whilst the above procedure is being followed.
- 3.1.8 Discussions at any stage of the procedure shall not be unreasonably delayed by any party, subject to acceptance that some matters may be of such complexity or importance that it may take a reasonable period of time for the appropriate response to be made. If genuine discussions are unreasonably delayed or hindered, it shall be open to any party to give notification of the dispute in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

(d) In calculating any payment in lieu of notice the minimum compensation payable to an employee will be at least the total of the amounts the employer would have been liable to pay the employee if the employee's employment had continued until the end of the required notice period. The total must be worked out on the basis of:

- (i) the ordinary working hours to be worked by the employee; and
- (ii) the amounts payable to the employee for the hours including for example allowances, loadings and penalties; and

(e) The period of notice in this clause shall not apply in the case of dismissal for misconduct or other grounds that justify instant dismissal, or in the case of a casual employee, or an employee engaged by the hour or day, or an employee engaged for a specific period or tasks.

4.9.3 Notice of termination by employee

The notice of termination required to be given by an employee shall be the same as that required of an employer, save and except that there shall be no additional notice based on the age of the employee concerned. If an employee fails to give notice, the employer shall have the right to withhold monies due to the employee with a maximum amount equal to the amount the employee would have received under clause 4.9.2.

4.9.4 Unless otherwise agreed, annual leave shall not be used to provide the notice prescribed in 4.9.2 and 4.9.3.

4.9.5 Time off during notice period

During the period of notice of termination given by the employer, an employee shall be allowed up to one day's time off without loss of pay for the purpose of seeking other employment. This time off shall be taken at times that are convenient to the employee after consultation with the employer.

(a) The employer shall consult the employees affected and, where relevant, their Union or Unions about the introduction of the changes, the effects the changes are likely to have on employees (including the number and categories of employees likely to be dismissed, and the time when, or the period over which, the employer intends to carry out the dismissals), and the ways to avoid or minimise the effects of the changes (e.g. by finding alternate employment).

(b) The consultation must occur as soon as practicable after making the decision referred to in clause 4.10.1.

- (c) For the purpose of such consultation the employer shall provide in writing to the employees concerned and, where relevant, their Union or Unions, all relevant information about the changes including the nature of the changes proposed, the expected effects of the changes on employees, and any other matters likely to affect employees, provided that any employer shall not be required to disclose confidential information, the disclosure of which would be adverse to the employer's interests.

4.11 Redundancy

4.11.1 Consultation before terminations

- (b) The consultation shall take place as soon as it is practicable after the employer has made a decision, which will invoke the provisions of clause 4.11.1(a) and shall cover the reasons for the proposed terminations, measures to avoid or minimise the terminations and/or their adverse affects on the employees concerned.
- (c) For the purpose of the consultation the employer shall, as soon as practicable, provide in writing to the employees concerned and, where relevant, their Union or Unions, all relevant information about the proposed terminations including the reasons for the proposed terminations, the number and categories of employees likely to be affected, the number of workers normally employed and the period over which the terminations are likely to be carried out:

- (c) The amounts must be worked out on the basis of:
- (i) the ordinary working hours to be worked by the employee; and
 - (ii) the amounts payable to the employee for the hours including for example, allowances, loadings and penalties; and

7.1.8 It will not be lawful for the employer to give or for any employee to receive the payment in lieu of annual leave.

7.1.9 If a holiday mentioned in clause 7.6 falls on a day on which a shift worker or continuous worker is rostered off the employee will have an extra day added to their annual leave.

7.1.10 If an employee suffered personal illness for a period of 5 days or more whilst on annual leave, such employee will be entitled to have the sick leave entitlement debited and annual leave entitlement credited to the extent of that period, provided that:

(a) The employee concerned provides the employer satisfactory proof of such illness and the period thereof;
